Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Decapoda of the Siboga Expedition, Vol. 1: Family Penaeidae The Penacidae collected by the Siboga Expedition ought to be considered as a most valuable contribution to our knowledge of these interesting animals and to the Fauna of the East Indian Archipelago. No less than 54 species and 2 varieties have been collected and of the species 19 or 20 proved to be new to science. Of the 34 or 35 already known species only 13 or 14 have been observed formerly in this Archipelago. The deep-sea investigations especially have been of great importance. A rather large number of species, viz. about 24, have been captured in the great depths and abysses of the sea, but of these species only 3 were already known to occur in the Archipelago, viz. Aristeus semidentatus (Sp. Bate), Haliporus neptunus Sp. Bate and Haliporus Lucasii (Sp. Bate), species collected formerly by the Challenger. The genus Benthescymus Sp. Bate is only represented by one species, but of the remarkable genus Gennadas Sp. Bate two species were obtained, both new to...
