Forgotten Books, United States, 2016. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Proceedings of the Boston Society of Natural History, Vol. 10 Had health and life been spared to him, Dr. Wheatland would have greatly advanced our knowledge of the embryology of this most interesting order of animals by his careful investigations. During his last period of partial health, he visited Buenos Ayres, in the hope of building up his failing strength, and while there contributed many specimens to the collections of Salem, Cambridge and this Society; but, alas for his wishes, both the voyage and the season were adverse to his hopes, and he returned home with health still more impaired, and remained an invalid until his decease. During his long sickness Dr. Wheatland showed a Christian resignation to his fate, and continued cheerfully Waiting until he should be called to the home of the God whose works on earth he so much loved, and in whose mercy he had firm faith. Dr. C. T. Jackson read the following Notice of the Death of Francis Alger of Boston. Our late associate, Francis Alger, son of Cyrus Alger, who married Lucy Willis, was born in Bridgewater in this State, March 8, 1807. He had one brother named Cyrus (now dead) and six sisters, five of whom are now living. Francis, in youth, was not studious, and had only a common school education. His taste for study commenced in 1824, when his attention was first drawn to the science of Mineralogy. To his love for that science he attributed his after progress in general learning and scientific acquirements. One branch of Natural History leads to others, and Francis soon found himself engaged in the study of shells and...
