The lords came to a resolution, that no peace could be safe and honourable for her majesty and her allies, if Spain and the Spanish WestIndies were suffered to continue in the power of the house of Bourbon. They presented an address, in which they desired she would press the emperor to fend powerful succours into Spain, under the command of prince Eugene, with all possible expedition, to make good his contract with the duke of Savoy, and strengthen the army on the Rhine, which was now happily put under the conduct of that wise and valiant prince the elector of Hanover. The commons concurred in this address; in consequence of which the queen desired the emperor to bestow the command in Spain upon prince Eugene. The court of Vienna, however, did not comply with this request, but sent thither count Staremburg, who, of all the German generals, was next to the prince in military reputation. The commons now proceeded to consider of ways and means, and established established funds for raising the supplies, which amounted this year to the enormous sum of near six millions., Harley, though he had quitted his employment, yet retained his place in the queen s savour the petulance of the duchess of Marlborough, who formerly held an entire ascendancy over the will of her royal mistress, had lost her that preeminence which she had abused. The queen, all at once, bestowed her...
